PHILADELPHIA,

TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 29.

In Claypoole's paper of Thursday a crested PORCUPINE is advertised as a show. This is rather an unlucky name for the interest of the proprietor of the animal. The name of Porcupine, though once "more tuneable than lark to shepherd's ear," now jars the auditory nerve of many a Philadelphian. There is a crested Porcupine at New York, with crest full lofty, and quills acute; go not near him, ye men of five thousand, shun him, visionary republicans, "flee far away," thou true American, the original crested Porcupine will not brook your approach.

Specimen of the Sublime in American composition.

The following is from "New York Advertiser," and is the true and only style of writing, popular and encouraged in America. If a scholar of the European model, could forget his classical lore, throw away his taste, quench his imagination, falsify his judgment, and become a "motley fool, a miserable varlet," and write Geographics, Biographies, Eulogies, &c. in the manner of the following, there is no doubt, but he would bask in the broadest sunshine of success, and be hailed a beautiful, patriotic, true-American writer. If he should sit down, and, in this stile, compose a panegyric upon a certain country, proving it to be, "as far as words and terms can go," the most free, sovereign and enlightened of any upon the globe, it would at once exalt and enrich the patriot author. He might be a Governor of a State or a Major General in the Militia. "Blushing honours" would thicken about him; opulence would give him Eagles by the handful; even the gripe of our Pedlar avarice would relax, and the Franklins of the time would tear out half a page of their economical diary. It is therefore modestly suggested, in a spirit of friendship and good will, that, from and after the date hereof, the literary tribe, in all our great national works assume the manner of the immortal writer below; a manner exactly suited to the meridian of the times; a manner, that would rescue him, who employed it, from every imputation of servility to Roman or English combinations of style; a manner so fulsome, so stupid so truly American as could not fail of delighting "millions." But it is ungenerous to keep impatient curiosity so long waiting in the anti chamber. Without more delay, we introduce said curiosity to the famous

New York Description of the Launch of The Frigate President.

Yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock precisely, the Daughter of the Forest and the Heir of the Ocean, embraced, in peerless Majesty, her destined element. The order, beauty, grandeur and godlike sublimity of the scene, the pen of man cannot depict. The beholders alone can known the mingled sensations of Pleasure, of Joy and of National Glory that the scene excited. The harbor on both sides for some distance was thronged with vessels, whose decks were covered with admiring beholders. The neighbouring hills, housetops, and even the shores of Long Island were crowded with spectators whose acclamations echoed the Glory of America. Several Artillery and Volunteer Companies according to the arrangements of Gen. Hughes, paraded near the shore, and after she entered the water closed the scene with a feu-de-joie. On the whole we think it the most noble scene ever exhibited on this side the Atlantic. Her construction, timber and workmanship, reflect much honor upon her builders, and great merit is due to the judgment of Mr Cheeseman, under whose direction she moved with the most perfect ease and harmony, and with a Noble Bow, bade the Land ADIEU.

COMMENTARY BY CRITO.

"At ten o'clock precisely, the Daughter of the Forest and the Heir of the Ocean embraced.—Considering the very lofty and sonorous stile of this nautical poet laureat, he certainly begins in a dry, hard and matter-of-fact-manner. It is quite an astronomical or rather almanack exordium. It is by no means inflated, and pompous, and foolish, like the rest of the poem. The author does not strike a grand key note at the beginning; "ten o'clock precisely," is a low, dull, obtuse sound, and "plods its weary way" through our ears. Passing by this prosaic phrase, we come now to notice the unseasonable hour of assignation, between "the Daughter of the Forest and the Heir of the Ocean," and the indelicacy of our poet in thus publicly exposing their amour. We must confess that ten o'clock in the morning is a very early season for enjoyment In the works of the learned and pious STERNE, mention is made of Saturday night as a sort of Carnival of Love and Matrimony; and, as we are credibly informed, it is the fact in many families that Hymen, Cupid, and Venus sometimes prophanely and wantonly revel together on a Sunday, But "ten o'clock precisely!" Aye, ten in the morning. This is too much! Fie, Mr. Poet;—

Your closely clinging loving pair,
Forest's daughter, Ocean's heir,
With throbbing veins, and bosoms bare,
Commence their joys too early.

Should fondest bridegroom of our land
So soon provoke the dalliance bland,
Ere many an hour glass shed its sand,
I trow he'd look most surly.

Solomon who was an experienced lover, remarks that there is "a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing. This rule is strangely confounded by those illustrious and most amorous lovers the "Heir of the Forest and the daughter of the ocean." But stop. This is a ticklish subject. "Give me an ounce of Civet, good Apothecary, to sweeten my imagination." The frolicsome powers of ridicule have laughed long enough at the morning amours of tar and timbers, and salt water.

"Claudite jam rivos, pueri, sat prata biberunt."

"Peerless Majesty." It would not be fair to suppose that our poet was in the habit of studying English authors; but, as MILTON was a republican, Paradise Lost might have been consulted. The "moon, rising in cloudy majesty" suggested "peerless majesty." Peerless is a most unfortunate word to be a companion to majesty. A more improper and unappropriate epithet could not be chosen from the mighty mass of the English language. But, "peerless majesty" is a fine nonsensical, bombastical rumbling phrase, and therefore is the very pink of taste for an American newspaper, and is sure to be popular among a majority of our loving countrymen, and cause them to salute the author as a clever man and a wonderful genus.

"The godlike sublimity of the scene, the pen of man cannot depict." Here is a wonderful flight. Montgolfier and Blanchard, with all their balloons, crept upon the ground in comparison of the audacious, lofty, empyreal excursion of our poet from one of the docks of New York. It is uncertain whether this paragraph bard is a Pagan or a Jew, but he applies a religious phrase to an ordinary occurence very much like a Heathen. It should seem, from the concluding member of this extraordinary sentence that the pen of a celestial being could alone describe this heavenly sight. What blasphemy and nonsense are here; but this is the fashionable rant of the day, and many a wondering American, with moony eyes, stares enraptured by whole pages of such kind of Eulogy.

"The beholders alone can know the mingled sensations of pleasure, of joy and of national glory, that the scene excited." This is rather a selfish and illiberal remark. It is devilish hard that absent friends could not feel these "mingled sensations." How deeply it is to be regretted that the "pleasure," and "joy," and "national glory," resulting from a launch, were confined entirely to the Jack Tars, and "admiring beholders" at New York.

"The harbor was thronged with vessels." "Thronged." A very forcible word, and strikingly exemplifying that proneness to exaggeration and fustian,* for which we are the laughing stock of foreign critics. The fact is, the above harbor was not thronged, nor choaked, nor overflowing with vessels. When the Americans have a better education, and study Greek and Roman and English authors, instead of vulgar newspapers, and the Sancho Panza proverbs of old FRANKLIN, they will learn to express themselves with simplicity and truth, and IN THE IDION OF THEIR ANCESTORS.

"The neighboring hills, housetops, and even the shores of Long Island, were crowded with spectators, whose acclamations echoed the glory of America"—Another example of braggart and hyperbolical, so much in request among the minor scribblers in America. This new, and wild, and foolish mode of composition first saw the light in a Wigwam, was "rocked and swaddled and dandled" by Committees of Correspondence and Safety, was introduced into good company at Oliver's Dock and now in its adult state stalks in the highest vigour through many a column of our impartial, or many colored newspapers. To a classical ear nothing can be more dissonant than such jargon. To sound judgment, and correct taste nothing can be more offensive than such puerile tumidity. From simple narrative to vivid description this extravagant, bloated style is too prevalent. Whatever is seen, or heard, is "unequalled," "wonderful," "vastly great," and "immensely prodigious." If a man die, then "a universe is in tears;" if a cannon explode, the world reverberates the deafening sound; if two or three are gathered together, it is an immense multitude, thronging, and pressing; it is Milton's "numbers without number;" it fills and covers the whole earth. Now this bombast will answer very well for a town meeting bawler, anxious to gull the miserable populace, gaping to be instructed whether their natural baseness and malignity shall be employed to quench genius, or to fire a city, to rip open a FEATHER BAG, or unhead a TAR BARREL. But it is too low, and absurd, and vicious to enter into any sentence of legitimate composition. It is to be hoped that from such specimens of style, the whole of American authors will not be judged, by trans atlantic criticism. For there is a correct band in this country, who to genius, add taste, and to taste, judgment, and to judgment, skill in the various arts of pure and elegant composition. The individuals, who compose this corps are not confined to the Eastern or the Southern States. They are sparsely to be found throughout our territory. To mention names would be invidious and improper, but such men are, who are incredulous to that quackish theory which would reject the study of the ancients, and adopt as models of sentiment and language, the Reports of a French Convention. There are men of letters here, who hold in utter contempt that paltry stile, which deforms so much of conversation, and so much of writing. There are, who assiduously study their mother tongue, in the purest English authors, and who are both solicitous and proud to copy the style of the Augustan age, whether to be referred to in Rome, or Albion. This literary corps are wholly ignorant of that Indian idiom so much in vogue. They disclaim it. If patriotism and national vanity are to be gratified by talking and writing in this dialect, these men will make no such sacrifice. They will support the rights of common sense. They will adhere to the old, established, and approved modes of speech, and will neither publish nonsense, nor spell it in a new way, because the folly of the time and Dr. Franklin and his followers have sanctioned it.

* A wretched, patchwork, Gallic and corrupt stile has long prevailed in our country. It is not English. But it is very current in the compositions of our editors, geographers and prentice politicians. Every word and phrase in this new vocabulary is detected and branded at once by the British reviewers, whenever they notice a Columbian production of this class. They call it, in derision, an Americanism. It is original. It has no affinity to the manner of Addison, Swift, or Bolingbroke. It is a sort of revolutionary dialect, and was begotten and born in the month Ventose. It is the fashionable jargon of wittol editors, and cloaked jacobins.

† Oliver's Dock. A low quarter of Boston famous both for the stench of its fish, and its politics. Men are commonly tarred and feathered in this agreeable place. Liberty poles are always exalted here, French flags have often waved over this suburb of St. Antoine. Here whole oxen are roasted and devoured, and if a Genet should again appear, more poor oxen would be sacrificed by the votaries of St Oliver.

"They paraded near the shore, and, after she entered the water, closed the scene with a feu de joie." Here it is natural to recollect "rout on rout, confusion worse confounded." What a medley of images throng upon the mind. In the compass of two lines we behold a military array, a ship launch, the melancholy closing of a theatric scene, and the brilliant glare of rejoicing fires. Nay, the poet is not satisfied with the copiousness of his English, but swells his subject with a phrase of France; as a cook lards the plump quail, or a tailor tacks lace to gorgeous brocade. Here we have parading, and entering, and closing, and firing

"Gun, drum, trumpet, blunderbuss & thunder."

"On the whole, we think it the most noble scene ever exhibited on this side the Atlantic." Our poet is still in the upper region, and "with no middle flight intends to soar." The launch of a frigate is a pleasing spectacle, and so important an addition to our naval strength suggests agreeable images of national glory. All this is true, and in this it is natural and laudable to be interested. But is not true that this is the most noble scene ever witnessed even on this side the Atlantic. It is a ludicrous exaggeration.

"She moved with the most perfect ease and harmony, and with a noble bow, bade the land ADIEU."

Our sublime poet, as if he had reserved all his strength till now, here appears gigantically sublime:

"Greater he looks, and more than mortal stares,
Who thus the wonders of the deep declares."

His ship, like the fabled Juno, is described with an eye to the "Ast Ego" of VIRGIL.

"She moves a Goddess, and she looks a Queen.

Still there is a visible mixture of the familiar with the supernatural, even in these lofty images. It seems as if the bard were thinking of some pretty fellow, taking leave of his mistress, or a powdered beau, gliding gracefully through a ball room, and practicing the retiring bow, just taught by the dancing master. Perhaps, however, he is here only availing himself of the figure ambiguity, or unintelligible, of which he seems remarkably fond. A ship, if right we read our nautical dictionary, may have a Bow, and if this be the poet's meaning, his favorite may bid mother earth good bye, without any extraordinary extravagance, either of meaning, or gesticulation. Perhaps also, in the fervor of his fancy, he has chosen to put into the hands of his ship a bow and arrows for the purpose of piercing some of the cursed pirates of the ocean; or as he is so much of an enamorato we may suspect he has in his eye part of the furniture of the god of love. The expression "noble bow" seems to support this solution, for as the poet is a man of reading, he might have recollected that beautiful and tender passage in the pedlar's ballad, commonly called "The Mournful Tragedy of Rosanna."

"Little Cupid bent his noble noble bow
Which left a fatal dart behind,
That prov'd Rosanna's overthrow."

After having at some length, in a style of burlesque and banter, thus analysed this curious paragraph, it may seem impertinent to close the subject gravely. But the subject is of importance, and deserves the sober consideration of all, who aspire to write and converse with purity and simplicity. This paragraph was not selected for the purpose of exclusive animadversion. We have no particular spleen against this individual composition. It was picked up from a mass of similar writings, in America, as a type of a very common, current, and utterly vicious style, at once the fashion and disgrace of the country. Criticism is useful and shall speak, though her voice "grate harsh thunder" to the ear of true patriots, bombastic editors, fustian orators, college boys, et id genus omne. Our reproach and ridicule are intended to reform. America has indulged this rant too much. It is time it should be ridiculed and reasoned away. We must choose this day whom we will serve. We have the "Moses and the Prophets" of language. We have Dean SWIFT, Dr. ROBERTSON and Sir William JONES. We have too the miserable remnants of Cromwell's puritanism, the "Babylonish dialect" of "forefathers at Plymouth," the "red lattice phrases" of acquitted felons, and the "hissing hot" speeches from many a town meeting. Of these deformities let us be ashamed, and strive to emulate a diction pure, simple, expressive and English.

CONGRESS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, April 28.

Mr. Speaker laid before the House the following letter from Robert Morris, Esq.

"Philadelphia, April 26, 1800.

"SIR,

"It would be an act of injustice to the officers of the Treasury, and to myself, was I to suffer a report made from the Committee of Claims on the petition of John Baptiste Verdier, to pass unnoticed; beside, that silence on the occasion might be considered as highly improper, when Congress, having in view to do justice, ought to be truely informed, that it may be known what justice requires. The only communication made to me upon this occasion, is by Mr. Claypoole, in his Daily Advertiser, of this day, wherein is printed, as part of the proceedings of the House of Representatives of the United States yesterday, what follows: 'Mr. D. Foster, from the Committee of Claims, made a report on the petition John Baptiste Verdier, who prayed compensation for three certificates of registered debt, which he alledged were erroneously paid to Robert Morris, Esq. who gave his bond to indemnify the United States against the claim of the petitioner. The committee report, as their opinion, that relief in this case, ought to be granted, and to that effect submit a resolution, proposing that compensation should be made to the petitioner, and that an act should pass for that purpose.' I cannot allow that the officers of the Treasury committed an error in paying to me the amount of the certificates alluded to.—Monsieur de Verdier had entrusted his certificates to a certain Mons. Augustine Briffault, who sold these and three others of his own, (he having also been an officer in our service) to a Lady in Paris, and that Lady transmitted the whole to me, with a power of attorney duly authenticated, authorising me to receive and apply the money according to her instructions.—When Mons. Verdier, applied to me, my answer was, that I could not know him in this business; I had received the money as the property of another person, to whom I was accountable. He urged, that Monsieur Briffault had wrongfully sold his certificates, without authority, and had not accounted with him. He frequently repeated his applications to me, appeared much distressed, and as I knew him to have been an active and brave officer in the American service during the revolutionary war, my feelings were excited, and I advanced him on loan one hundred dollars, and consented that he should commence a suit against me.

"Some time after this transaction, I was applied to by the Chevalier de Colbert, who claimed as heir to the purchaser, the amount resulting from the whole of the certificates. To him I paid the amount of those about which there was no dispute, and referred him to Mons. Verdier, to settle which of them had the right to the others:—they could not agree, and the suit which was instituted against me in the supreme court of Pennsylvania, was finally decided against M. Verdier; whilst it was pending (as I considered the share I had in the business to be of the nature of a 'trust') I gave a security for the amount of the disputed certificates, to which the successful claimant might, and no doubt will have recourse.

"Having thus stated facts which I am ready to prove, I must in justice to those whose reputations have been affected by the terms of the report made from the committee of claims, without having had any communication with me on the subject, although it appears therein that I am a party materially interested, request, that this letter may, under the sanction of the same authority, have equal publicity with the report that has called it forth.

With great respect,
I have the honor to be, Sir,
your obedient humble servant.
ROBERT MORRIS.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States."

On motion of Mr. D. Foster, this letter was committed to the committee of the whole house to whom was referred the report of the committee of claims, on the petition of J. B. Verdier, and was ordered to be printed.

The bill to authorize the allowance of a credit to William Tazewell; and the bill to provide for the sales of certain lands between the Great and Little Miami Rivers, were respectfully read a third time and passed.

Mr. Rutledge moved that the committee of the whole house to whom was referred the bill from the Senate in addition to the act to prohibit the carrying on the slave trade from the United States to any foreign place or country, be discharged from the further consideration thereof.

Mr. Bayard seconded this motion, with a hope that the bill would be recommitted; it was impossible as the bill now stood, to carry its provisions into execution; and he wished them to be so modified as to prevent our citizens from having any thing to do with so infamous a traffic.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Bayard then moved that it be referred to a select committee.

Mr. Rutledge opposed this motion, and Mr. Waln advocated it—The motion was agreed to, and three members appointed.

The House resolved itself into a committee of the whole on the bill to promote the manufacture of sheet copper within the United States, by the incorporation of a Company under the name of the Passayick Company—Mr. Rutledge in the chair when the bill was agreed to without amendment, and ordered to be read a third time tomorrow.

Mr. Stone from the committee to whom was referred the petitions of Lawrence Erd, and Samuel Selce, 3d, who pray to be released from imprisonment in which they are now held, for debts due the United States. The committee report unfavourable to the petitioners; but in order to take the sense of the House, submitted the following resolution:

Resolved, That provision ought to be made by law for the personal discharge from prison of insolvent debtors to the United States.

The resolution was agreed to without debate, and a committee appointed to bring in a bill conformable thereto.

Mr. Rutledge made a motion that it be

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to enquire whether any, and if any, what alterations ought to be made in the act intituled "An act respecting fugitives from justice and persons escaping from the service of their masters."

A short debate took place on this motion, which was negatived, ayes 34, noes 38.

On motion of Mr. Bayard, the further consideration of the bill to establish an uniform militia throughout the United States, was postponed till the first Monday in December next—Ayes 59.

Mr. Eggleston then moved that the bill for establishing a military academy, and for the better organizing the corps of artillerists and engineers, be also postponed till that day.

Mr. H. Lee called for the yeas and nays upon this question which was taken, Yeas 64 Nays 23.

On motion of Mr. Dana, the House again went into committee of the whole on the bill to provide for the execution of the 27th article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation, made with Great Britain—Mr. Rutledge in the chair—and Mr. Nicholas' amendment, which provides that no person shall be delivered up, where there is a concurrent jurisdiction—being under consideration—a long debate took place, in which it was contended on one side, that this House had no right to put a construction on the treaty; and on the other, that no treaty could deprive a man of the right of trial by jury, nor wrest from our courts the absolute jurisdiction given by the constitution—The question was negatived.—Ayes 42—Noes 45 and the committee rose and obtained leave to sit again.

A message was received from the Senate by Mr. Otis their Secretary, informing the house that the Senate ask a conference on their amendments to the bill supplementary to the act for an amicable settlement of limits with the state of Georgia, and for establishing a government in the Mississippi territory—and also that the Senate insist on their amendments to the bill to divide the territory N. W. of the Ohio into two separate governments.

Managers on the part of this house were appointed to confer with managers from the Senate on both the above bills.

Mr. Speaker laid before the house a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, inclosing an account of the receipts and expenditures of the United States for the year 1798.

Mr. D. Foster, from the committee of claims made an unfavorable report on the petition of Mrs. Mary Wooster, widow of the deceased General Wooster.

This report was committed to the committee of the whole house to whom was recommitted the bill to make further provision for the orphan children of Col. Harding, and Major Freeman, to whom was referred the reports on the petition of Mrs. Lynch and Mr. Elliott.

This day an account came to Dr. Stevens, of twelve Brigand barges having, a few days ago, attacked the ship Boston, in a calm; that she had sunk 9 of them, and all the Brigands were lost, except a few that her boats picked up: the other three barges got off. Nearly about the same time the Brigands took the schooner Cynthia, capt. Gould, bound to Port Republican, who left this 6 days ago, but we have not learnt what they have done with the crew.

Since the above was written, I have been informed that capt. Gould and all his crew were put on shore on the beach at Gonaives, and all shot, except the captain and cabin boy, who escaped; the boy has lost his arms. This I received from Dr. Stevens.

PARIS, 1 Ventose, Feb. 20.

Installation of the Consuls.

Yesterday the Consuls were installed in their new place. The cavalcade set out at 1 o'clock from the Luxemburg. The Counsellors of State, the Secretary General, the Ministers and the Consuls, all in grand costume, proceeded to the Thuilleries, preceded by military music, and accompanied by the etat-major of the 17th military division.

The Chief Consul quitted his carriage, mounted on horseback, and inspected the rank of the different corps stationed in the court, and then repaired to one of the halls of the Palace, where the Minister of the Interior presented to the Consuls the members of the different administrative authorities at Paris. Several naval officers were presented by the minister of that department. The minister at war presented the etat-major of the 17th division, and General Murat those of the consular guard.

This ceremony was conducted with the greatest order, and though there was a great croud no accident happened. The populace testified their joy by the warmest acclamations.

2 Ventose, Feb. 21.

The Members of the Diplomatic Body assembled together about 1 o'clock, P. M. in one of the halls of the Government Palace which had been prepared for their reception, and which is called the Ambassador's Hall. When they were all arrived, they were ushered into the state apartments. They were then introduced by citizen Benezech, counsellor of state into the cabinet of the Consuls, where, together with the three Consuls, were assembled the Ministers, the Counsellors of State, the Secretary of State and the Secretary General of the Consuls.

The different members of the Diplomatic Body were received by the Minister of the Interior at the entrance into the Cabinet, and the Minister for the Foreign Department presented them in the following order to the Chief Consul.

The Minister de Musquitz, the Spanish ambassador.

The Minister Plenipotentiary of Prussia, Baron de Sandoz Rollina.

The Roman ambassador, citizen Justiniani.

The Cisalpine ambassador, citizen Serbelloni.

The ambassador and minister plenipotentiary of the Batavian Republic, citizen Schimmelpenninck.

Citizen Zeltner, formerly minister plenipotentiary of the Helvetic Republic, in order to present his renewed letters of credence.

Citizen Jenner, minister plenipotentiary of the Helvetic Republic.

Baron de Reitzenstein, minister plenipotentiary from Baden,

Citizen Bocchardi, minister plenipotentiary of the Ligurian Republic.

Mr. Manthey, charge d'affaires from Denmark.

Mr. Kopp, charge d'affaires from Hesse-Cassel.

Mr Signeul, commercial agent and charge d'affaires from Sweden.

Mr. Classon, general commercial agent from Denmark.

The letters of credence of these different ambassadors or ministers were presented to the chief consul, who handed them to the minister of foreign relations. The ambassadors delivered no speech on their introduction; but the chief consul addressed each of them in particular. There was observed in this ceremony that dignity, that punctilious regard to decorum, which ought always to be attended to in the relations of the representative of a great nation with respect to those of all the European governments.

After the reception of the ambassadors, the ministers of justice and of the finances introduced to the chief consul the different judges and persons employed in the finance department.

PROPOSALS

By WILLIAM COBBETT,

For importing the following periodical publications:

1. The British Critick;
2. The Anti-Jacobin Review and Magazine;
3. The Gentleman's Magazine;
4. Le Mercure Britanique, or The British Mercury.

THE British Critick is a regular Review of all the works published in Great Britain; it is conducted with great impartiality and ability, and of the numerous publications of the kind which do now appear, and which have appeared in Great Britain; it is universally allowed to be the best.

[Price 50 Cents.]

The Anti-Jacobin Review and Magazine is as its title seems to indicate, rather more confined, as to the nature of its subjects, but it certainly is not less calculated for extensive utility. This work is divided into four departments: 1 Original Criticism—2 A Review of the other Reviews—3 Occasional Essays, in prose and verse—and 4th, A Monthly Summary of History and Politics. Every six months it has a supplement, containing a review of foreign works, not forgetting those of America. The Anti-Jacobin dwells less on subjects which are merely literary and scientific, than on those which have a more immediate influence on society. With a bold and masterly hand, it corrects the blunderings of error, traces the intricate windings of misrepresentation, and strips off the mask of hypocrisy. The avowed champion of the church and the state, it spares the enemies of neither, whether open or secret; and, scorning the pusillanimous defensive, upon which the friends of truth have too long acted, it carries on a continual and vigorous offensive warfare against anarchy, immorality, and irreligion, and thus establishes by its uniform conduct, its right to the title it has assumed.

[Price 50 Cents.]

The Gentleman's Magazine, a work stamped with the approbation of three score years, consists chiefly, of communications from antiquaries and cultivators, and of original essays, in verse and prose written by the most learned and ingenious men in the kingdom, and embracing by turns, almost every subject interesting to man. The miscellaneous part of the work is followed by a selection of authentick foreign and domestick intelligence, including official reports, state-papers, and an abstract of the proceedings in parliament; next comes a very copious obituary, being not merely a list of deaths, but a valuable series of biography; to which is added, a Meteorological Diary and Table, a Bill of Mortality for London and its environs, a table of the average prices of corn, and of the stocks, for every day in the month: So that this work must ever be an entertaining and useful companion, not only to those who are of the learned professions, commonly so called, but to the merchant, the farmer, and, in short, to every man, whatever may be the subject of his study, or the object of his pursuit.

[Price 40 Cents.]

Le Mercure Britannique, or, British Mercury; by Monsieur Mallet Du Pan.—This work, of which one number is published every fortnight, in French and in English, commenced in August 1798, and is continued with increasing spirit and celebrity. It is both historical and critical; it contains a summary, and is the repository, of all the important events, established facts and public instruments, which relate to the present æra; it investigates points of fact, of politics, and national rights; it extends its view over all the nations of Europe, examines the conduct and discloses the motives of their respective courts; it is in short a brief and comprehensive history of the times, equally remarkable for the elegance of its style, the profundity of its remarks, and the soundness of its principles.

[Price 50 Cents.]

These four works comprise every thing useful in the periodical way. Gentlemen may subscribe for all, or for either, of them. The first order is intended to be sent off on the 1st of May next; the successive numbers will be received at New York in two months upon an average after, their publication in London; so that those which are subscribed for on or before the 1st of May, will be received in September; after which they will with very little irregularity, come to hand once a month, the importer having made such arrangements as cannot fail of securing punctuality on the part of his correspondents.

☞ Subscriptions will be received from any part of America, by J. W. FENNO, Philadelphia. No advance is required. The prices are but four cents a number higher than in London.

MAP OF NEW-JERSEY.

THE commissioners appointed for the purpose of circulating subscription papers, to the proposed plan of procuring an accurate Map of New-Jersey, immediately after their appointment transmitted printed copies of the plan to various persons in the several counties of this state, and in the cities of New York and Philadelphia, and since that time, through the medium of the public prints, have requested the gentlemen entrusted with those papers, to return the number of subscribers by them respectively procured, to James Salter, Esq. at Trenton, on or before the 6th day of February last. The number of subscriptions received, not amounting to two thousand, the commissioners did not conceive themselves authorized to fix a day for the meeting of the company; nevertheless being of opinion from respectable information, that the actual subscriptions are nearly, if not fully, adequate to the complete organization of the company, if they could be ascertained by regular returns, and being convinced that a trifling degree of exertion, on the part of the persons holding the subscription lists, would enable them to carry the intention of the subscribers into effect, they have by the unanimous advice and consent of the subscribers, whom they have been able to consult, fixed on the 14th day of May next, being the 2d day of the sitting of the supreme court, for a meeting of the subscribers at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, at the State House in Trenton, for the purpose of electing five Trustees and a Treasurer, if the number of subscriptions should be sufficient, or in any event to determine on the measures necessary to secure the attainment of an object so useful to the state.

From the universal approbation exhibited by their fellow-citizens, at the commencement of this undertaking, it was to be expected that the subscriptions returned would have ensured its immediate execution, and the commissioners are persuaded if proper attention is paid to the procuring of subscriptions, to their punctual return at the time fixed for the meeting, and to the attendance of the subscribers, either in person or by proxy, that no farther delay will take place in commencing the operations of the company, in time for their execution during the course of the ensuing summer.

Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, on the morning of Saturday the 19th instant, a mulatto Servant Man, named Wilks, but commonly called John; he is about 23 years old, 5 feet 8 inches high, slender and knocked kneed; he is a dark mulatto, has thick bushy hair, which he commonly wears plaited and turned up short behind; his face is thin, but appears more so from having large whiskers; he had on when he went away, a round hat about half worn, white muslin cravat, a brown second hand coat with fashionable metal buttons, a black silk waistcoat, with a white one underneath, pantaloons of a greyish cloth with buttons at the ancles, striped cotton stockings and shoes. He may have changed these clothes, but it is not likely, as he has left all his others behind him. I am told a servant of General Ridgely's, with whom he was intimate ran-away on Sunday morning; it is not improbable but they are together. Wilks is from Chester-town on the eastern shore of this state, where he lived with a mr. Jeremiah Nichols who sold him to me. I have good reason to believe he has gone to Philadelphia.

The above reward will be given to any person who may lodge him in jail at that or any other place, and give me or mr Joseph S. Lewis of Philadelphia notice of the same.

He is an excellent house servant, and if in Philadelphia will probably offer himself to hire in that capacity,

W. GILMER.

Baltimore, April 22—(25) d.

Twenty Dollars Reward.

RAN-AWAY, from Spring Forge, in York County, a negro man, named ISAAC, otherwise CUDJO, about 21 years old, the property of Robert Coleman, Esq. Whoever takes up said negro and lodges him in any jail in this or any of the neighbouring states shall have the above reward or reasonable expences if brought home.
